

1. Chmod is a command that allows you to change file or directory permissions.

It was useful when I had to use it to allow a usb device to be recognized by the vm.

Sometimes you need to change permissions to a file to edit it or keep people from editing it for security purposes.

2. Linux Golf Exercise 1

```
cat /etc/passwd | cut -d: -f7 | sort | uniq -c
```